Risk Management

A commitment to working with clients to reduce the number of incidents and claims

Insurance is not (and never will be) a substitute for good management practices and disciplines. It is a valuable safety net for those occasions when accidents occur despite the controls, precautions and safeguards which good management has put in place.

Industrial accidents cost UK businesses billions of pounds a year with only about one quarter protected by insurance.

Hallsdale Commercial have a real commitment to working with clients to reduce the number of incidents and claims.

This proactive approach is undertaken in conjunction with our preferred suppliers whose expert advice and recommendations covering the prevention and control of loss, damage and destruction can prove invaluable.

Our risk management procedure begins with an assessment of your organisation and the identification of potential hazards and exposure to loss. This enables us to formulate specific formal recommendations which pave the way for you to grow a better, safer business.

Effective risk management reduces your dependency on insurance, which, in turn ensures that losses are minimised and that claims are few. This in turn leads to lower insurance premiums.
